Funeral Honors Former Sen. Arthur V. Watkins

OREM, Utah (UPI) — Friends, relatives, government officials and political associates paid a final tribute Tuesday to former U.S. Sen. Arthur V. Watkins, who led the censure action against Wisconsin Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy in the early 50s.

"He had a will of iron when faced with a decision of right or wrong," said Ezra Taft Benson, former U.S. Agriculture Secretary under President Eisenhower.

"He always knew where Sen. Arthur V. Watkins stood," Benson said. "He always stood for principle."

Benson, now a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, was appointed by Eisenhower at the urging of the Utah senator.

Watkins who served from 1947-59, chaired the Senate Select Committee which recommended censure of McCarthy for his conduct of an investigation of communism in government. He died Saturday at the home of his daughter. He was 86.

Funeral services were held at the Sharon LDS Stake Center chapel, Watkins was president of the stake for 16 years after its founding in 1929. He was buried in the foothills overlooking Utah valley.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, a Republican colleague who served with Watkins in the Senate for eight years, attended the service, as did Gov. Calvin L. Rampton.

Also present were Ernest L. Wilkinson, former President of Brigham Young University; David T. Lewis, chief judge of the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals; A. Sherman Christensen, retired senior judge for the U.S. District Court of Utah; and Henry D. Taylor, assistant to the Council of Twelve Apostles.

Taylor said Watkins was a man who never backed away from an unpleasant task.

"Sen. Watkins didn't flinch in carrying out the unwanted and unpleasant assignment of the Senate committee recommending censure, despite pressures and rebuffs," Taylor said.

BOR Letter, Other Items, Noted by Salem Council

By DAWN TAYLOR
SALEM — Salem City discussed a letter from the Bureau of Reclamation, which considered applicants for a bookkeeping job in the city office and voted to amend the sewer ordinance in business taken up during council meeting Tuesday evening.

The BOR letter asked cooperation in reducing the use of electricity in the city during September because of a serious energy crisis.

The shortage of power came because of a suit prohibiting water from entering the Rainbow Bridge National Monument, the letter stated. Don Pierce, city manager, said that because Salem was such a small city, not much could be done to reduce electricity use through the residents.

A MINIATURE TRAIN used to re-enact the Golden Spike ceremony is in the backyard of Orville Gunther of American Fork. Mr. Gunther, a railroad buff, laid the tracks for the train, and one of them was painted gold for the rites. The whole Gunther family was involved in the project, and several friends assisted also.

Am. Fork Man Fulfills Boyhood Dream, Builds Own Railroad

By VERLAINE ALLEN
AMERICAN FORK — A re-enactment of the driving of the golden spike was held recently — only it was not at Promontory Point, it was held in American Fork.

The original golden spike ceremony commemorated the completion of the railroad which linked one end of the continent with the other.

The American Fork ceremony commemorated the completion of a boyhood dream as Orville Gunther completed a railroad behind his home.

A railroad buff from his youth, Mr. Gunther dreamed of being an engineer. But he went into banking instead. After a successful career, he found himself still with the desire to become a train engineer. So he built his own railroad.

The track is laid in a field behind the Gunther home at 860 E. 700 North. The 2,000 ft. of rail was furnished by Douglas Cleghorn. Dick Savage contributed the gravel. Dezel Pulley furnished the cross ties and plans to make a station and a coal bin very soon. Ted Pope of Springville made the tools and helped lay the track.

The whole operation is really a community affair. Mr. Gunther said he and his family invited neighboring families to come over and hold "family night" with them and work on the building project. As it neared completion he wanted to thank all those who contributed their time and effort, and decided to hold a miniature "golden spike" ceremony. His grandson painted a railroad spike gold, and they were all set.

The train is brightly painted, black, red, yellow and green. It has a genuine coal-fired steam engine and a covered passenger car. Two flat cars have been added, which will probably have seats installed later, and plans are to add a caboose eventually. And Mr. Gunther in his engineer's cap and neckerchief looks very much like the engineer he always dreamed of being.

Mr. Gunther said he plans to use the train for the enjoyment of his and his neighbors families, and also for the people of the town on certain occasions.
